

JEFF BJORCK

Last Name Pronunciation:

Byork. One syllable, rhymes with “York.”

Piano Style:

Jeff’s music has been described as heartfelt with a classical feel. While typically categorized as new age, Bjorck’s unique sound extends beyond this genre. With particular emphasis on deep emotion and melody, his compositions have been called nostalgic, inspirational, contemplative, joyful, and even stunning. His most recent release, The Wondrous Gift: A Pure Piano Christmas, was named a “top holiday CD” by Kathy Parsons of mainlypiano.com. Parsons also recently named Pure Piano Panoramas (2000) as one of her “top 40 for the decade.”

Short Bio:

Born to two artists, Bjorck began creating music at the age of ten. To Jeff, nature embodies God’s ultimate artistic creativity, and it is frequently the subject of his music. He also loves composing through the media of photography, illustration, painting, and poetry. When not composing, Dr. Bjorck pursues his profession as a clinical psychologist, researcher, and professor at Fuller Seminary’s Graduate School of Psychology. His multifaceted vocation typifies his ongoing passion for a Renaissance man’s approach to life. When not working or enjoying time with his wife, Sharon, Jeff occasionally likes scaring their two cats with his clarinet renditions of ’30s and ’40s big band tunes. He also loves to seek creative inspiration for new music by hang gliding high above the mountains of Southern California.
